Harriman Appointment Promises New Cabinet Unity

NEW MEMBER FAVORS FIRM SOVIET POLICY

Truman Picks Ambassador to Britain as Successor of Wallace.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — W. Averell Harriman's addition to President Truman's official family edged it further away today from domestic issue views espoused by Henry Wallace and united it on policy toward Russia.

The present ambassador to Britain, tapped by Mr. Truman to replace the ousted Wallace as secretary of commerce, is widely credited, in fact, with having had a major hand in framing the present policy of firmness toward the Soviets.

It was Wallace's public disagreement with this policy which led the president to dismiss him from his cabinet.

Has Experience.

Harriman gained his ideas of how to deal with the Russians first in handling lend-lease aid to them and later in more than two years as ambassador to Moscow. In personal relations, those ideas worked. He was highly popular.

Politically, the new secretary-designate is, like Wallace, a Republican turned new dealer. Now 55, Harriman was born to wealth and became a Wall Street banker. He and a brother inherited some $100,000,000 from their father, E. H. Harriman, the railroad (Union Pacific) magnate.

But he supported Al Smith, the unsuccessful Democratic presidential nominee in 1928, and came under the New Deal banner when the late President Roosevelt unfurled it in 1932.

Differs From Wallace.

Despite this New Dealish background. Harriman is far away from Wallace on many social and economic issues.

The general appraisal among politicians is that the cabinet's political complexion has shifted to the right a bit from what President Roosevelt used to call the "left of center" course of his administration.

Initial comment from legislators was uniformly favorable.

Asked for his reaction, Wallace sent this word to reporters:

"I am sure that this appointment will be received with the greatest enthusiasm by the business community."

During Roosevelt years, Harriman became known as the "No 1 spokesman for business" in talking with the administration.

First British reaction indicated the appointment would go far to wipe out any lingering resentment arising from Wallace's references in his New York speech to "British imperialism."

There was no immediate comment from Moscow. Russian ac-

BIG 4 TRY TO SPEED WORK OF PEACE PARLEY

Foreign Ministers Agree on Meeting Tomorrow to Iron Out Differences.

PARIS— (U.P.) —The Big Four agreed today to meet tomorrow in an effort to iron out differences and speed the deliberations of the Peace conference.

The foreign ministers will meet at the Quai D'Orsay.

Decision to hold the meeting came after British foreign secretary Ernest Bevin met privately with Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov for the first time since the Paris conference started.

Bevin and Secretary of State James F Byrnes also met with French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault.

Bevin met privately Saturday with Secretary of State James F. Byrnes immediately after returning to Paris from London. Byrnes has not seen Molotov in private since the opening of the 21-nation conference although he and Bevin met frequently to iron out strategy and tactics.

Exactly one month remains before the united nations general assembly will open in New York and the peace conference will be forced to speed its deliberations radically if it is going to finish before that date.

The conference today tackled the controversial question of the disposition of the Italian empire. The Big Four agreed to delay a final settlement for a year but provided that Italy must renounce her rights to colonial possessions.

Thinks Lost Airmen Slave In Lolo Land

NANKING —(AP)— Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart said today there was reason to believe some long-missing American B-29 fliers may still be living—as slaves in savage Lolo land, near the setting of mythical Shangri-la.

American military authorities have been given all available reports, from sources which Ambassador Stuart termed reliable. But officers said that a rescue expedition to this uncovered, west China region, one of the wildest mountain areas on earth, would be a formidable undertaking. Even an investigation would involve tremendous difficulties.

The area, spotted with peaks ranging up to 18,000 feet altitude, is near the borders of Burma, Assam, and storied Tibet.

China's government has not penetrated to Lolo land, and Chinese dare not enter. The tribesmen, reported by some sources to number in the millions, retain their own language and primitive customs. They are believed to have traveled the remote mountains in safety and a few scattered missionaries and a handful of roving opium traders.

The Lolos, although they live in savage poverty in unfurnished mud and stone huts, have a rigid caste system. There are feudal lords, middle-class herdsmen and craftsmen, serfs, and—at the bottom of the scale—slaves.

COMMISSIONERS START SEARCH FOR VET HOMES

Portable Units Favored By Board Which Has $64,149 to Spend on Them.

Holding $64,149 in state money to finance emergency housing projects for veterans, Richland county commissioners said today they were looking for portable or temporary housing units to bring into the city area as home for vets' families.

Although an opinion of the attorney general received by the commissioners indicates "permanent" buildings may be acquired with the state money commissioners believe they can finance more homes if "temporary" structures are obtained.

Commissioner John W. Selby said he had been informed that six family units at the government's ordinance installation at Ravenna are available at a cost of $5,100. He added that a Mansfield contractor has offered to build four family units for the county at a cost of $10,000.

"Since the program calls for only temporary housing, the portable buildings would probably be more economical," Selby said.

Seek Data At Ravenna.

C. L. Shoup, chairman of the commissioners, said an investigation of the Ravenna buildings and other surplus government structures would be made.

Meanwhile, formal acceptance of the first of 75 veterans housing units at Vetsville, on U. S. Route 30 near Mifflin, will take place today between an FPHA official

PARADE CLOSES VFW SESSIONS

Vet Funmakers Go Home After 2-Day Convention.

With the frolics, the parading and the business meetings concluded, Mansfield's Alfred I. Harrington Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, yesterday said goodbye to some 500 delegates to its organization's tenth district conference.

The two-day conference reached a climax yesterday with the installation of the Harrington Post's new ladies' auxiliary, a business meeting attended by more than 100 of the delegates, and a parade of delegates, auxiliary members and musical organizations through the downtown area.

The business meeting at the Amelcan Legion home yesterday morning was addressed by District Commander Frank J. Howard of Bucyrus. A welcoming address was made by Mayor Roy W. Vaughn and received a response from R. B. Gardner, past commander of the Legion. District Quartermaster Clyde Myers of Mansfield made his report to the business session

Marching in the parade, besides the VFW and auxiliary members, were the American Legion drum corps, the VFW drum corps, the Madison high school band, the North Robinson high school band, and the Legion band. Several thousand persons saw the parade yesterday afternoon.

The wind-up of the conference yesterday followed the antics Saturday night of the Military Order of Cooties, VFW fun group, which initiated 26 Mansfielders into its membership.

Some 150 visitors were served a luncheon yesterday noon at the Legion home by the Legion auxiliary.

Register By Oct. 7—That's the message on the handbill which Jim Geigler, Boy Scout member of Troop 18, is handing to Mrs. C. E. Wilmoth, 54 Brickman avenue. Distribution of the handbills to Mansfield homes is part of the drive which the Jaycees are conducting in the city, urging registration for the fall election before the Oct. 7 deadline. With Jim in the above picture is Al Snyder, also a member of Troop 18. (News-Journal Photo.)

Autumn Shows Up Again

May as well brush off the overcoat, get out the overshoes, fill up the coal bin, and toss on an extra blanket—Fall is here!

Summer bowed out at 10:41 a. m. today—hour of the autumnal equinox or the sun's crossing the equator.

Despite the arrival of the season of red and gold leaves and crisp mornings, it was more like summer today than it was during most of August. The mercury climbed to 85 yesterday and was in the high 70's today. Cooler weather was forecast for tonight and tomorrow with some scattered showers.

OPPOSE SOVIET DEMANDS FOR MILITARY DATA

U. S., Britain Ready to Crack Back at Request to Tell of Troop Disposition.

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's demand for information on Allied troop dispositions in foreign non-enemy states faced vigorous U. S. and British opposition today in the United Nations Security council.

As the delegates prepared to meet at 3 p. m. to take up this new issue, both U. S. Delegate Herschel V. Johnson and British Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan were reported ready to challenge Russia's right to demand such information under the U. N. charter.

Informed quarters said both would ask the council to refuse to place the Soviet demand on its agenda on the ground that such a question did not come within the jurisdiction of the council unless coupled with a charge that peace was endangered or breached.

Johnson was reported ready to ask Soviet delegate Andrei A. Gromyko two questions: What was Russia's motive in raising the issue in the council and, secondly, under what article of the charter was the action taken.

Gromyko first brought the question up Aug. 30. In his original statement Gromyko made two demands:

1. In which states, other than former enemy states, and in what numbers are armed forces of other members of the United Nations located.

2. In which of these states are situated air and naval bases, belonging to other members of the United Nations, and what is the strength of their garrisons.

"The presence of Allied troops for so long a time after the end of the war, a presence which is not called for by military necessity, must provoke natural uneasiness," Gromyko said.

PROFITS HUGE, COUNSEL TELLS INVESTIGATORS

19 Firms Made $356,006,612 on Negligible Capital, Declares Coles.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — One of 19 shipbuilding companies whose wartime profits are under investigation made $2,080,000 on a mere $600 investment, the house merchant marine committee was told today.

The St. Johns River Shipbuilding Corp., was named as the profiting firm by Committee Counsel Marvin Coles as the group opened an investigation of wartime shipbuilding profits.

Coles also said that the Henry J. Kaiser group earned fees and profits totaling $192,237,284 from the operation of government built yards.

Invested Little.

The St. Johns firm, he said, actually made a capital investment of only $600 while the government invested $16,029,112 in facilities.

All of the 19 companies under investigation earned an estimated total profit of $356,006,612 on a capital investment of only $22,979,275. The facilities which these companies operated cost the government $424,250,694.

Coles said the figures were supplied by the maritime commission, which came under fire from one of the first witnesses—Ralph E. Casey, attorney for the general accounting office.

Casey said that in many cases the commission relied on contractors' figures to make decisions about profits.

Profits, No Risks.

Denouncing contract practices of wartime shipbuilders, Casey said that never before "have so few men made so much money with so little risk—and all at the expense of taxpayers not only of this generation but of generations to come."

Testifying at the opening of a house merchant marine committee investigation of wartime shipbuilding profits, Casey said this practice left the government "at the mercy of a handful of individuals in transactions involving hundreds of millions of dollars."

Casey sharply criticized the maritime commission. He charged that in many cases the commission relied on contractors' figures to make decisions about profits.

Casey read a 25-page statement that was a thorough-going denunciation of virtually every contractual phase of wartime shipbuilding operations.

He charged that shipbuilders sought to escape, whenever possible, cost-plus contracts which were subject both to renegotiation and to an audit by GAO. He said shipbuilders urged frequently that their contracts for a given operation be changed while they were in the midst of performing it.

This device, usually involving "price minus" or "selective price" contracts, left GAO with no way of checking profits, Casey said.

Westinghouse Reveals Range Walkout Now Settled.

In the first acknowledgement that there had been a dispute between company and employes last week, a spokesman for the Westinghouse Electric corporation reported several hundred workers on the electric range assembly line were back at work today.

Interruption of the assembly line operations for the past week occurred when approximately 135 workers in the company's vitreous enameling plant walked off the job because of low pay checks resulting from application of the incentive system.

Neither company nor Local 711 UE-CIO officials would comment on the dispute last week

Young Munir confessed the theft after 30 hours of investigation but insisted that "Chall put me up to it." Detective Sgt. Walter Wyrod said.

MANY ERRORS

Rechecks to Delay Terminal Leave Payments.

GREAT LAKES, Ill.—(AP)—An estimated 40 per cent of 800,000 claims for terminal pay will be delayed because of errors in filing, officials of the terminal leave disbursing office at the Naval station said today.

The officers said that in all cases of error the claim must be returned to the veteran, who must then refile his papers. The most common errors the navy said were failure to indicate time lost from AWOL or over-leave delays; failure to indicate furlough time; failure to submit discharge certificate together with the certificate of separation from the navy.

Dorothy Kilgallen—

SPEAKING FOR MYSELF—

Well, the problem of what is wrong with American marriage has been solved at last, thanks to the unfailing perspicacity of the Hollywood screen writers, and the solution is going to come as quite a surprise to experts who have been probing into the subject for a good slice of a century and are still on the fence. The answer was arrived at with complete unanimity by Warner Brothers, Columbia and Paramount.

* * *

The trouble with American marriages, the boys have figured out, is not drunkenness, infidelity, mother-in-law, money squabbles, gambling, illiteracy or bad biscuits. The thing that is wrecking homes all over the country, the screen writers say, is the fact that men want to work for a living and women don't want to let them. If men could only be persuaded to knock off permanently once the wedding bells had rung, the divorce judges would have nothing to do but sit around reading joke books.

The theory may come as a surprise to certain groups of citizens, like the one I move in, but let us not try to deny a Trend just because we are not part of it. For myself, I can cite cases of women who are so anxious to see their husbands make good in the business world that they go so far as to set the Big Ben at 7:30 with their own little hands Others, even more anxious, actually arise to get breakfast and speed the toiler with a doorway kiss, and never is the smile of such a female broader than on payday when the man of her heart comes through the garden gate with his take home pay.

But that kind of girl is fast becoming hard to find The new vogue is for ladies who disdain a man who works and try everything from tears to icy glances to dissuade their mates from pursuing a career.

If you don't believe it, go to see "Night and Day," "The Jolson Story" and "Blue Skies."

In "Night and Day," for instance, Cary Grant and Alexis Smith love each other. There is no other man in her life, no other girl in his. He is brave, talented and sober. They marry There is no indication that he kicked her under the table during a gin game or that she boiled his three-minute eggs for four minutes, but even so the marriage goes on the rocks. And why?

Because he insists on working This infuriates her so that the mere mention of his composing a score for another show is enough to make her storm out of a party like a beautiful blond typhoon.

In "The Jolson Story," Larry Parks woos and wins Evelyn Keyes while he (as Al Jolson) is at the peak of his career. But the minute the ring is on her finger she develops an overpowering aversion toward men who sing on the stage, or even act in the movies, and when he keeps on working to provide her with swimming pools and Louis Seize mansions and ermine coats down to her shoetops, she begins to hate him.

When she is about to leave him for his industry, he sees the light and retires, and the little woman hides the theatrical news and avoids the mention of "song" or "stage" the way a drunkard's wife would try to keep bottles out of the pantry. In the end she does leave him, without so much as a farewell note, because he gets up at a nightclub and sings a few songs, and even though he does this for free she knows it is likely to lead to the old vice of singing songs for money.

In "Blue Skies" Bing Crosby can't keep Joan Caulfield out of his toupee at the beginning of the picture when she is just a little chorus girl who has fallen in love with his charm. But they marry and before you can say "improbable" she's fighting like a wildcat with him because he is making money hand over fist running successful nightclubs.

There is a slight twist in the plot here—she is willing to let him make money if he will just stick to one nightclub and not keep changing his type—but the plot is essentially the same. It is the plot of a girl whose husband doesn't drink, chew or say "darn-it" and who is beefing like mad because he is making good and hanging her with her rubies.

I would like to hear something on this subject from a wife whose husband draws $40 a week and whacks her now and then when dinner isn't ready at seven.

TREATED FOR INJURY

MILLERSBURG — A bad cut into the bone on the knee was sustained by Mrs Mareil Sheely, Killbuck, when a sharp piece of metal on some farm machinery she was helping her husband to load, struck her knee. She was brought to Pomerene hospital and a local physician used several stitches to close the wound. The accident occurred at 7 p. m Wednesday evening. She was released from the hospital Thursday.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

An Army corporal hauled a man into a police station and charged him with lifting his wallet. "I'm guilty, Judge," confessed the man. "Please give me a sentence and a divorce, too."

"Why a divorce?" asked the judge

"I opened the corporal's wallet," said the defendant, "and the only thing I found in it was three pictures of my wife."

At the Dutch Treat Club, John Golden declared that the following was probably the oldest theatrical story extant. I mention this fact because it popped up as "new" in a Broadway column two days later. Anyhow, here's the story:

An old Shakespearean ham actor told the manager of the opry house in a one-horse burg he was playing that he didn't feel in the mood for Hamlet, and had decided to do Othello instead. "Not on your life," bellowed the manager. "I got a sign up in the barbershop window saying the bill was Hamlet tonight, and it's Hamlet you're going to play."

"Okay," said the actor wearily, "but in that case you'll have to advance me a dime to go over to that barbershop and get a shave." "Advance you a dime, eh?" mused the manager. "Oh hell, play Othello"

Barclay on Bridge

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

FAMILIARITY with the nomenclature of the game is not particularly important to successful performance. It is desirable, however, to know you speak correctly when engaged in bridge discussions with more experienced players. One expression often misused is "Grand Coup," when the speaker really means "Trump Coup" The latter means shortening your trumps intentionally by ruffing, so you may wind up leading through an opponent's trumps. The play attains the name of "Grand Coup" only when a card which was ruffed would otherwise have been a winner.

	♠ K Q 10 7 ♥ J 10 7 6 ♦ 3 2 ♣ K Q 5
♠ 9 6 5 4 3 ♥ 5 4 3 ♦ 10 ♣ 9 7 6 3	N W E S	♠ A J 8 2 ♥ A 9 2 ♦ J 6 5 4 ♣ 10 2
	♠ None ♥ K Q 8 ♦ A K Q 9 8 7 ♣ A J 8 4

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 ♦	Pass	6 ♦

Morrie Elis, of New York, in the Individual Masters Championship, made that contract by a fine play which a kibitzer called a "Grand Coup." It was a "Trump Coup," but not a "Grand Coup."

The spade 4, covered by the K and A, was ruffed by the diamond 7. Two diamond tops disclosed East's trump holding and the need for cutting the South trumps to East's length.

The heart K was given up to the A and the club 10 return won by the A. The heart Q and 10 were scored. Then came the "coup" play. The spade 10, covered by the J, was ruffed by the diamond 8, cutting South's trumps to two, same number as East.

Followed then the club 8 to the Q, the spade Q for discard of the club 4, the heart J, East tossing the spade 8 and South the club J, and then the spade 7. East had to play from the diamond J-6 before South's Q-9, so was helpless.

Notice that on the eighth trick the lead from dummy, the spade 10, was not a winner. If it had been his own J instead, which South ruffed, the play would have been a "Grand Coup."

PETER HEARS A RUMOR

A rumor when it reaches you
Is seldom more than partly true.

A rumor is a report, a story, that each who hears it repeats to some one else, yet of which no one seems to know the truth. A rumor grows as it travels. Long ears are always listening for rumors. Peter Rabbit has long ears. So it was that a rumor reached him over in the dear Old Briar-patch. It came from the Big River or the Smiling Pool, he wasn't sure which.

"Who are you talking about?" asked Blacky, just as if he didn't know.

"My dear," said he to little Mrs. Peter. "I have just heard the strangest thing."

"What have you heard?" asked Mrs. Peter, looking at him suspiciously. Was this going to be a new excuse for leaving the dear Old Briar-patch?

"One of the Heron cousins has suddenly changed his coat," said Peter.

"What of it? A lot of birds change their coats. What is there strange about that?" asked Mrs. Peter.

"Not over night," declared Peter.

Mrs. Peter looked mildly interested. "Are you telling me that a bird's coat can be changed over night?" said she.

"That is what I hear, and, what is more, the new coat is like snow," replied Peter.

"You mean"—— began Mrs. Peter.

"It is white, all white," Peter broke in.

"I don't believe it," declared Mrs. Peter flatly.

"That is what they say," replied Peter.

"Who says so?" demanded Mrs. Peter.

"Oh, everybody," replied Peter vaguely.

"Which of the Heron cousins is it who has the white coat?" Mrs. Peter wanted to know.

"I don't know," confessed Peter. "I've heard it is Longlegs the Great Blue Heron and I've heard it is Quawk the Night Heron. No one seems to really know. But whichever it is he is wearing a white coat now," said Peter.

"I don't believe it," said Mrs. Peter tartly.

"Why don't you believe it?" demanded Peter.

"Because when some folks say one thing and some say another about a thing, usually all are wrong. Besides, birds don't change their coats over night. It just isn't done. Don't believe everything you hear, Peter Rabbit. You've lived long enough to know better than that," retorted Mrs. Peter.

"I think," said Peter. "I will run over to the Big River and see for myself."

"You'll do nothing of the kind. You'll stay right here in the dear Old Briar-patch," declared Mrs. Peter sharply.

Just then Blacky the Crow appeared coming from the Big River. He lighted just outside the Briar-patch. Peter poked his head out. "Did you see him? Which is he?" he asked eagerly.

"Who are you talking about?" asked Blacky, just as if he didn't know.

"The Heron with the white coat?" replied Peter.

"No," said Blacky, shaking his head. "There was no Heron with a white coat at the part of the Big River where I was."

"Could you change your coat over night?" demanded Mrs. Peter.

"Of course I couldn't. I would like to see the bird who can," replied Blacky, chuckling.

"But Longlegs and Quawk are the only Herons around here, so that white Heron must be one of them and must have changed his coat over night, for I saw both of them yesterday and they were dressed just as usual," persisted Peter.

"When one of them changes his coat to all white I'll do the same thing," said Blacky, and, chuckling hoarsely, he flew away.

The next story: "Peter Goes Looking."

PILES ARE NEVER "MILD"

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids) as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves. Instead, they are likely, if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling, and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief — written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties.

Winchell — On Broadway

HERE'S PULLING the duncecap over the ears of another pushover: The Times editorialist yipped that we were "irresponsible" when we reported DeGaulle's prediction that there would be war in '46 . . . This week the same opinion-boy quoted Stalin's Feb. 9th statement, that war was "inevitable in a capitalistic world."

The editorialist can have a barrel of beer on us, if it will help any to wash down his own words.

From the Herald Trib of Tuesday ayem: "In a plea for restoration of American wartime intelligence, Gen. W. J. Donovan (he was chief of OSS during the war) asserted yesterday that Russia's foreign policy 'might well arouse in our minds the fear of war' " . . . That (finger-snap) for the ostriches who are screaming there is no fear of war . . The same lummoxes who called us an alarmist in 1933—until Pearl Harbor Day. Oh, those Also-Ranalysts!

Dr. Runyon was trying to ignore a well-known bore at the Stawkleb the other morning.

"Whassamatta?" asked a pal. "Stopped talking to him?"

"No," he said, "listening to him!"

You prob'ly read here long ago that whenever anyone says: "Now this is off the record!" Runyon always gets up and leaves.

"Except when Jim Farley says it," said Damon. "When Farley says 'this is off the record,' he means 'print it'!"

J. Elinson's: "The theory that you can't hit a man with glasses is all wrong. Look what's happening to Truman!"

Joe Laitin reports that reporters at Bikini were questioning an Army Lt. about what weapons would be used in the next war.

"I dunno," he said, "but in the war after the next war, sure as Hell, they'll be using spears!"

Helen Frazer, the Barbizon model-chief, was week-ending at a Westchester place where a nose-in-the-air Britisher was inspecting the furniture. "I notice," he noticed, "this piece comes from England."

"Hmf," hmf'd Helen, "we got the whole country from England."

The deep peril of tossing a red herring at everyone who disagrees with you is emphasized by the Greek crisis. A New York reporter in Greece informed: "The Greek Government's army and gendarmes are waging a pitiless war on scores of thousands of women and children in a desperate effort to halt a growing rebellion and wipe out not only Communists, but all democratic, liberal and republican elements" . . . The article further states that the Greek Government's definition of a Communist is anyone who criticizes it.

Among the Americans who cried "Communist!" at anyone who disagreed with them are Rankin, Bilbo, Fish, Nye, Wheeler, Dilling, Smith and Kuhn.

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK—My recent little bout of peas-porridge-hot with the Rev. Joseph F. Donnelly, of the Hartford Diocesan Labor institute, wherein I kept my punches up and my demeanor stately even when he stuck his thumb in my eye, has elicited from the editor of the Monitor, the official organ of the archdiocese of San Francisco, an interesting collateral report. I guess I mean collateral, although I shouldn't go in for such high-sounding words when I mean a ringside comment.

Father Donnelly wrote in the American Ecclesiastical review thta he had not been "unhappy" to learn that the vast majority of a group of young Catholic priests disagreed with my opinion of the American union movement which is, briefly, that it is so much more bad than good as to be, in the total score, terrible. I replied that these junior clergy were "misinformed" and gave a few, but only a few, reasons why I believe it is so bad.

I am unable to give you the name of the editor of the Monitor because, unfortunately, the man who sent me the tear-sheet containing his comment had torn it off across the mast-head. He is the Rev. Hugh A. D—. Duffy, perhaps, or Donovan or Dolan?

He is, anyway, temperate and fair, whereas Father Donnelly was up on his feet, cheering, because a group of young clergy, apparently under his own tutelage, agreed with one who began his article by expressing his "distaste for the gentleman," meaning me. What has his distaste for the gentleman to do with the facts of the case, anyway?

The editor of the Monitor reviews by criticisms and offers some thoughts of his own.

Exercising their right to form unions for their own betterment, he says, working men have been opposed by employers who sought to maintain a "free' labor market, in which the unorganized individual competes with every other worker for whatever job is available. Thus the man willing to work for the least sets the pay for the job.

"Unions," he wrote, "want employers to be in the market for labor rather than labor to be in the market for work."

Let me interrupt.

Employers have been in the market for workers and labor has been in the market for jobs, both, ever since V-J Day, a new phase of the conflict. Neither the employers nor the workers wanted this condition but the union bosses imposed it.

* * *

"Workingmen who belong to unions favor the control that their unions acquire over job opportunities . . ."

Now, wait a minute, Father D—!

If you mean "some workingmen," all right. But if you mean all or most of them then why do unions demand the check-off, whose doughtiest and honestest advocate, John L. Lewis, admits that its principal purpose is to check apostasy?

Do you think the multitudes of workingmen "who belong to unions" only because they were forced to join or go hungry, favor those controls by unions over job opportunities?

Having studied union constitutions as much as any other man in the U.S.A., and, I dare say, more than the junior clergy of the Hartford Diocesan Labor institute, I maintain that these controls constitute a tyranny that no self respecting workingman would submit to willingly. They violate the citizen's rights more outrageously than employers would dare try today.

And I say this is the worse for the people of the country because so many political and spiritual leaders condone or even advocate it. One job-control is the power to "try" and suspend indefinitely any worker, and citizen, who violates the rule against "un-union-like conduct." What is "un-union-like conduct?" It is anything that a few union bosses don't like.

Othman — On Anything

WASHINGTON — (CP) — You been going to the movies lately? And noticed how they mostly are about blonds, who are all mixed up inside their pretty noggins? Sure you have.

Then when the cutie on the silver sheet is about to go off her bat, the handsome psychiatrist with the curly hair talks her out of her troubles. Clinch. Finis.

Well sir, one of my old pals from never-never land is in town with weird news. Says those movie makers have been going to their own shows and believing 'em.

The crystal gazers on Sunset boulevard have lost their trade; the palmists on the outskirts of Santa Monica are reading freud. The place is jammed with psychiatrists, phoney and otherwise, who give the producers, the stars and the labor leaders psychoanalyses at $15 an hour, and up.

My man reports that when a lovely from Metro bumps into a beauty from paramount these days she is almost certain to say: "Darling, have you been psyched?"

The more he talked about the wondrous things going on in post-war Hollywood, the happier I was that I traded in Hedy Lamarr for Sen. Robert A. Taft. Nothing personal, Hedy. I mean I think I'll live longer in Washington. Listen:

Most movie queens now drive 1946 convertible station wagons. These have bodies of yellow wood and tops of red canvas and anybody in Hollywood who still rides in an ordinary limousine hasn't bribed the right auto salesman.

The black market in motor cars and meat is wild-eyed. The house in Beverly Hills which I once turned down because it cost $14,000, sold a while back for $46,000. No swimming pool, either.

Ciro's again has become the hottest of the hot spots; a fellow taking his girl there for dinner can, if he economizes, get out for $30. Only he seldom orders the cheap $10 champagne. The movie business is booming; wages never have been so high.

Minimum pay for a journeyman press agent is $156 a week. One strike has followed another; each has resulted in steeply hiked pay checks for the sound stage denizens.

Only the top flight stars are embarrassed. Nearly every one organized his own personal producing corporation, in order to save income tax money. John Snyder's treasury agents caught up with 'em; they're paying off as quietly as possible.

Three kinds of pictures are being manufactured. The big rush is the psychology plot; almost as popular are films about animals (Fred MacMurray is playing opposite a horse) and wild westerns deluxe in technicolor.

One of the latter still is to be released; it has cost David O. Selznick $7,000,000, advertising included. Not a bad little show, either, my agent says. He adds that there has been a rash of divorces lately. Undoubtedly the wrong kind of psychology.

Take it away, Hollywood. I'll stick with the interstate commerce commission; I'm not as homesick as I thought.

'IKE' STARTS TOUR

INVENTOR OF A-BOMB DEVICE DIES IN GALION

Roy C. Arter, 56, Telephonic Expert, Succumbs to Heart Attack.

GALION—Roy C. Arter, 56, nationally known telephonic engineer and inventor of a control mechanism used in the detonation of the atom bomb, died suddenly at 2:45 a. m. Sunday at his home, 436 Church street. Death was due to a heart attack.

Mr. Arter had been chief engineer of the North Electric Engineering company, manufacturer of telephone equipment, for the past 36 years.

Besides his work on the atom bomb, he was nationally known for his basic patents used in the manufacture of telephone equipment and telephones. His name was familiar to practically every independent telephone company in the United States.

Although Mr. Arter had been in ill health for some time, he insisted upon continuing his intensive research and administrative duties at the company without regard for himself.

He was born in Galion, the son of John and Della Jones Arter. His wife, Leila M. Arter, whom he married in 1912, survives, also two daughters, Mrs. J. S. Morgan of Milwaukee, Wis., and Miss Marcia Arter of Columbus; three grandchildren; one brother, John Arter of Lodi and two sisters, Mrs. Jessie Free of Galion and Mrs. Harry Bowen of Cleveland.

Mr. Arter had lived in Galion all his life. He was a member of the First Reformed church, Galion lodge No. 414 F. and A. M., Scottish Rite and the Shrine. He also belonged to the Galion Kiwanis club.

Services will be conducted Wednesday at 3 p. m. at the home by Rev. R. R. Elliker, pastor of the First Reformed church. Burial will be in the Fairview cemetery here. Friends may call at the home today and Tuesday afternoon and evening.

ATTEND MEET IN CINCINNATI

9 Boy Scout Executives to Go to Session Next Weekend.

Nine Boy Scout executives of the Johnny Appleseed area will attend the silver anniversary observance of Region No. 4, next Friday and Saturday in Cincinnati, Floyd Dent, area executive, announced today.

Fall Grand Jury Considers Charges Against 23 Persons

The fall session of the Richland county grand jury got under way this morning with County Prosecutor Theodore Lutz calling witnesses in cases to testify.

It is expected the jury will need three days to probe all the charges which include two of first degree murder and numerous others of robbery, larceny and embezzlement.

Usually considering the least serious charges first, the jury will probably leave until the last the charges of murder against Howard Nichols, 20, and Lewis Murton, 19, Mansfield reformatory inmates, who are said to have stabbed to death Janvere Bruck, 18, a fellow prisoner of OSR, last July 18.

Charges to be probed include, besides the two of murder, robbery, pocket picking, embezzlement, grand larceny, auto theft, cutting with intent to wound, receiving stolen property, rape, breaking and entering, and abandoning a pregnant wife.

HURT IN CRASH

Mrs. Robert Kennedy Injured as Cars Collide.

Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy, 170 Vennum avenue, was reported in "good" condition at General hospital today, where she is recovering from contusions of the head and body suffered in a traffic accident yesterday two miles southeast of Lexington on State Route 97.

Also injured slightly in the accident was Miss Martha Stone, 23, Lexington, R. D. 1, who was treated for bruises of both knees and head.

State patrolmen said the accident occurred at 5:30 p. m. at the state route and Gass road. Robert Kennedy, 34, driver of one car, told patrolmen a car driven by J. J. Stone, 71, of Lexington, R. D. 1, went past a stop sign at the intersection.

MADE ELIGIBLE UNDER GI BILL

VA Rules Citizens in Canadian Army May Get Benefits.

VA officials in the Mansfield sub-regional office, in reply to several queries, today reminded ex-GIs that American citizens who served in the Canadian armed forces during the war are eligible for certain benefits of the GI Bill of Rights, even though they received veterans' gratuities under Canadian laws.

Veterans who received a cash bonus and a "re-establishment credit" in an equal amount from the Canadian government, are also eligible for VA loan guarantees as provided by U. S law.

The VA decision on interpretation of an amendment to the GI Bill of Rights apparently denying American benefits to such veterans receiving "similar benefits" from foreign governments clarifies the amendment as follows:

Benefits, under Canadian law are a cash bonus, based on length and place of service, and an equal amount of re-establishment credit."

On this basis, the Veterans Administration decision ruled that a guaranteed loan, which the veteran is committed to repay with interest, is not "similar" to the Canadian gratuity.

TAKES BIDS FOR SURPLUS GOODS

Agency to Try New Plan on City Area Veterans.

Mansfield war veterans who, in the past, have had to go to Cleveland to be certified for priority to buy surplus war goods, will have that service brought home to them tomorrow and Wednesday.

Representatives of the War Assets administration will set up shop tomorrow and Wednesday at the Veterans' Information center, 417 Walpark building, for the convenience of Mansfield area veterans.

From 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. on both days, WAA counsellors, former servicemen themselves, will listen to the surplus property problems of veterans from Mansfield and surrounding towns, advise them and accept their applications for priorities to purchase war-excess goods.

"This is the first attempt by WAA to bring this service directly to the veteran," Walter D Johnson, acting chief of the Veterans Division in Cleveland, said today, "and we are regarding the Mansfield innovation as a trial horse. We want to see how veterans from Mansfield and nearby towns go for it."

If it succeeds in meeting with a favorable response from ex-servicemen here, Johnson indicated that WAA will continue it as a regular operation in other towns throughout the Cleveland region, serving northern Ohio and western Pennsylvania.

Routzon added that growth of membership in the organization has increased steadily since 1938 when membership totaled 525. Membership has increased 355 since 1941.

FUN FOR VETS—

If you'd like to help a wounded veteran pass his time in a hospital, this is for you.

Mansfield Amvets of Robert P. Spreng Post No. 26, led by welfare committee chairman, Don Cram, are collecting several hundred decks of playing cards for hospitalized vets. Used decks in reasonably good condition are just as acceptable as new ones, and will help the Amvets meet a quota of 10,000 packs which they have set as their goal in Ohio.

Contributions of playing cards may be given to any local members of the Amvet post, or sent to Cram at the YMCA, where they will be packaged and forwarded to the veterans' hospitals.

WELL CLEANED—

The mystery of a missing rug from a Park avenue west home was cleared up today soon after a report that it had been stolen was made to police. The owner had reported that the oriental rug had been returned from the cleaners about two weeks ago and was left rolled up in the hallway. Then it disappeared. Following the report of its theft, someone in the household remembered sending it to the cleaners for the second time.

GOOD START—

There's a possibility that boxing instructions may be incorporated in the Friendly House kindergarten curriculum this year. This morning during registration, a husky four-year-old by the name of Joe Louis walked up fourth in line to enroll in the pre-school session. Amazed by the likeness to the heavyweight champ, Mrs. Russell Gimbel had to affirm the name from the child's mother to satisfy her own curiosity. "It's amazing how much he resembles the fighter," Mrs. Gimbel said, adding, "and he likes boxing too." The kindergarten session will open one week from today.

MEETING SET

Young Republicans Try to Revive Club.

Efforts to revive the Richland County Young Republican club, suspended during the war because so many of its members were absent from the county, will be made at a meeting in the probate court tomorrow at 7:30 p. m., it was announced today.

"Some of us had a preliminary meeting Friday and it was decided to bring the organization back to life," William J. Johns said. Johns and James Stecker are members of a temporary guiding committee.

The meeting tomorrow will be devoted largely to electing new officers, Johns said. Persons of any age may be members of the club but only those under 35 may be officers. The club has 55 nominal members now, Johns reported.

26 VICTIMS TO BE BURIED AT SITE OF CRASH

Risk of Attempting to Move Bodies Too Great, Rule Airline Operators.

GANDER, Nfld.—(AP)—Gilbert Perier, general manager of Sabena Airlines, said today that the bodies of 26 persons who lost their lives when a Belgian transatlantic airliner crashed near here Wednesday would be buried at the scene of the disaster rather than endanger the lives of rescue teams by attempting to bring the bodies out of the wilderness.

"The job of rescuing the survivors was a risky one," said Perier. "It was worth the risk when there were lives that could be saved. Circumstances, however, have dictated our decision not to attempt to bring the bodies out and prolong the hazard to the lives of the men who have been such a great help."

Perier lost his daughter and recently-divorced wife in the crash. Eighteen survivors of the disaster, rescued by helicopter, are now in a hospital here.

Meanwhile members of an army rescue party which hacked a path through tangled forests to reach the survivors told for the first time the full story of the disaster.

Conditions Bad.

"Things were in pretty bad shape," said Cpl Harry A. Houghton of Windber, Pa., a member of the rescue party. "Several of the passengers had been burned to ashes. Those still alive were wet. It had rained the night before and during the day, and they had been lying on the ground. A rescue plane had just dropped some sleeping bags before we got there, and the survivors got into them."

Pfc. Alfred A. Pogacsnik, of Cleveland, Ohio, another member of the rescue party, said most of the survivors remained in the sleeping bags, some of them groaning with pain, others dozing. He added that they "joked and laughed with one another after we got there and began taking care of them, trying to keep up their spirits."

The rescue group said the survivors told them that before the crash the passengers had been instructed to fasten their safety belts and that the plane could not land at Gander because of fog but was going to another field.

When the ship crashed several were thrown clear of the giant craft. Most of the survivors were those sitting in the rear of the galley.

The rescue party members were quick to praise the courage of the survivors.

Houghton said that Miss Jean Roocki, the little Belgian stewardess, "really took hold of things" after the crash. She and three other survivors pulled 16 persons out of the wreck.

"This Girl Scout lady (Miss Helen Ruth Henderson of New York) was swell," Houghton said. "She was always singing and talking about movie stars. I remember one time she kept going like a banjo—plink, plink, plink."

Capt. Samuel P. Martin, who headed the 13-man rescue squad which treated the survivors for four days, was modest about his part in the heroic operation.

"I didn't do anything, but just what we were told to do," said Martin, weary from more than 100 hours work aiding the injured and paving the way for their evacuation by air to the hospital here.

'WAR OF NERVES' ENTERS FINAL WEEK

SPORTS ROUND UP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A good rule in sport is that if you're going to get into a fight, pick a guy from Notre Dame for your side. When the All America football conference was tuning up for a scrap with the National League, it acquired Jimmy Crowley as commissioner and Joe Petritz, former Notre Dame publicitor, as chief tub thumper.

The new pro-basketball association of America isn't expecting many battles, but it has obtained another Iris Ballyhoo artist, Walt Kennedy, to handle its publicity. Only in Chicago is there much likelihood of serious opposition for the new cage league. The established National league has a club there and it already has hired Big George Mikan, who "made" college basketball in the stadium, to head a club that will operate in another arena.

Ward "Piggy" Lambert quit as Purdue coach to become commissioner of the National league and Ole Olsen of Ohio State, a longtime rival of Lambert, will be coach and vice president of the Chicago Association club.

P.S.

One of Publicitor Kennedy's first duties is to spread the news that Pat Kennedy, the celebrated red faced whistle tooter, will be referee-in-chief of the new basketball league. "I hope," Walt adds, "I don't get as many boos as the other Kennedy."

Abe Greene, National Boxing association head, officiates today at the unveiling of a sculptured portrait of Joe Louis' hands at the Chicago of Raw Shaw, the only artist who devotes herself exclusively to hand portraits. Would you say Abe usually has a hand in things? Instead of staging "secret" football practices, Coach Bernie Moore of Louisiana State even allows broadcasts of the Tigers' drills. Maybe Ernie listened a couple of times and decided it was the best way to deceive the opposition

Dodgers Pick Up Ground

"The war of nerves" enters its final week today as the St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers race neck and neck down the stretch for the National league pennant.

At the moment, the Red Birds lead Manager Luppy Leo Durocher's Dodgers by a thin half game. The Cards have six games left to play while the Dodgers have five.

The Brooks begin the important weeks play by meeting Manager Ben Chapman's hustling Philadelphia Phils at Ebbets field today while the Cards clash with the Cubs in Chicago before moying home to St. Louis to hook up with the Cincinnati Reds twice and the pesky Bruins thrice. The Phils battle the Dodgers three times befoer the Boston Braves come in for two games.

St. Louis blew an opportunity to take a strangle hold on first place by taking a 7-2 beating from the Cubs before a capacity throng of 42,324 yesterday while the Dodgers split a twin bill with the Braves.

Hank Borowy stifled the Cards with six hits as the Bruins overcame a 2-1 St. Louis lead by scoring three runs in the sixth inning off Howie Pollet, southpaw ace of the Birds.

The Dodgers, after bowing 4-2 to Johnny Sain, came back and hammered the Braves into an 8-1 defeat in the finale Vic Lombardi throttled the Braves with four singles.

Over in the American league, Detroit's hurricane Hal Newhouser and Cleveland's Bobby Feller clashed in a hurling duel. The Belgal lefthander outpitched the Tribe speed king 3-0, allowing only two hits.

It was the slim southpaw's 26th win. Feller was charged with his 14th loss as against 25 victories. The Tigers also won the second game 4-3, which was halted because of darkness at the end of eight innings

The New York Yankees downed the Philadelphia Athletics, 4-3 and 7-4.

The flag winning Boston Red Sox beat the Washington Senators 4-1 as Tex Hughson spaced six hits to gain his 19th win.

Rookie Fred Sanford hurled his second straight shutout since joining the St Louis Browns from Toledo Sanford blanked the Chicago White Sox 2-0, but the Browns dropped the second game, 8-5

In the other National league games the Philadelphia Phillies beat the New York Giants twice, 4-3 and 1-0, and the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-2 and 6-5.

Upon completion of the second game, Manager Bill McKechnie of the Red Legs told his players that he had resigned.

BUCKEYE BLASTER—Joe Whisler, 214 pound fullback, is Willard's contribution to the 1946 Ohio State football team. Whisler was the most publicized back on the powerful 1942 Buckeye frosh eleven. Ohio State opens against Missouri in Columbus Saturday afternoon.

Prospective Pigskin Powers Pulses Palpitating Plenty

By STEVE SNIDER, U. P. Sports Writer.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Little Cincinnati set a gridiron tempo today which increased the pulse rate of such prospective powers as Army, Notre Dame, Alabama and Texas

An overlooked atom in the collegiate football scene, the University of the Rhineland rose up out of its obscurity Saturday to knock over Indiana's defending Big Ten champions, 15-6. It comes as a tip-off on what to expect in a season turned topsy-turvy by stars home from the service

Any team is likely to run into an unexpected stone wall, particularly the top teams which take on powerful rivals from week to week. Army, Texas and Alabama romped home in their openers but Notre Dame was looking forward shakily to its inaugural next weekend against a fit Illinois eleven which may provide one of the games of the year.

Army, a 35-0 victor over Villanova, showed it still has plenty of ball club, particularly with Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis operating in the backfield. But the reserves are weak and Oklahome, coming up next, is pointing for the Cadets with every hint of malice aforethought.

Miami, O., followed the Cincinnati trend although it fell short in dropping a close 13-7 game to Purdue Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin upheld the Big Ten name in easy romps.

Texas stood by its reputation with a 42-0 win over Missouri and Kentucky turned in a mild upset with a 20-6 win over Mississippi. But from here the road gets rockier

The top games this week are Army - Oklahoma, Illinois - Notre Dame and Tulane-Alabama, but every section has a full card of close ones.

In the east: Navy - Villanova; Columbia-Rutgers; Pitt-West Virginia; Cornell - Bucknell; Yale-Kings Point; Harvard-Connecticut, and Holy Cross-Dartmouth.

Mid-west: Iowa-Purdue; Cincinnati-Kentucky; Michigan-Indiana; Minnesota - Nebraska; Northwestern-Iowa State, and Ohio State-Missouri.

West U. S. C. - Washington State; California-Wisconsin; Stanford-Idaho, Oregon-COP; UCLA-Oregon State; Washington - St. Mary's and Stanford-Idaho.

South: Tennessee-Georgia Tech; Georgia - Clemson; Mississippi-Florida; North Carolina-VIP; N. C State-Duke; Richmond-VMI.

Southwest: Oklahoma A. & M.-Arkansas; Rice-LSU; Texas-Colorado; Texas A & M.-Texas Tech; TCU-Baylor, Tulsa - New Mexico Aggies

Grays Defeat Cleveland, 6-5

Bob Bogantz scored the winning run in the ninth yesterday, when he raced home on a wild pitch, to enable the Mansfield Grays to defeat the Cleveland White Sox, 6 to 5, at Liberty park.

Bogantz walked, stole second and reached third on Merle Leedy's single to set up the sixth and deciding run. It was the Grays 20th victory in 31 starts

Leedy pitched a stellar relief roll when he allowed only three hits in six innings. He hit a home run in the first with one on.

'Deacon' Expects New Baseball Job

PITTSBURGH — (U.P.) — Grey-haired Bill McKechnie, only man ever to win major league pennants in three cities, was expected today to take over a new job shortly—probably as pilot of the Pittsburgh Pirates—after his dramatic resignation as manager of the Cincinnati Reds

The 59-year-old "deacon" waited until his team had won a double header from the Pirates yesterday before calling the players together in the club-house to tell them he was through.

Giants Trail Dodgers In Ohio State Playoffs

SPRINGFIELD, O.—(AP)—Trailing three games to two, the pennant winning Springfield Giants resume a best-four-out-of-seven Ohio State League post season playoff series with the Zanesville Dodgers tonight.

The Giants muffed a good chance to take the lead yesterday in the ninth inning of a game at Zanesville which the Dodgers won, 3 to 2. Springfield got three men on base without a putout, but nobody moved any father.

Browns Blank Bisons

NEW YORK—(AP)—Although the season is barely under way, the Cleveland Browns have stamped themselves as the team to beat in the All-America conference, new professional football circuit.

The Browns, who have piled up 92 points to six for their opponents in winning their first three games, blanked the Buffalo Bisons 28-0 yesterday, while the San Francisco Forty Niners whipped the Brooklyn Dodgers 32-13.

The big test for the Browns will come next Sunday when they tangle with the New York Yankees, leaders of the eastern division, at Cleveland in a game that should result in an accurate comparison of strength between the two sides of the league.

A crowd of 30,302, largest ever to see a professional game in Buffalo, watched the Browns score the first time they got their hands on the ball yesterday on a pass play from Otto Graham to John Yonakor which covered 52 yards.

Graham also heaved another touchdown pass to Marion Motley, who scampered 33 yards to the goal. Runs of 12 yards by Gaylon Smith and 25 yards by Chet Adams, who picked up a fumble, brought the other Cleveland tallies.

Frankie Albert, leading passer of the conference, paced the Forty-Niners to their second win in three starts before 35,000 at San Francisco

Not Too Bad For First Win

MEMPHIS, Tenn — (AP) — Golf's barnstorming mercenaries moved on to Dallas today with the happy thought that the big money tournaments at last have become wide open affairs

A rank outsider, O'Neal (Buck) White of Greenwood, Miss., pocketed the $2,000 first prize in the Memphis open yesterday by firing an 11-under-par 277 for the four times around the Chickasaw course.

It was Buck's first major tournament triumph and, incidentally, the first piece of change the husky former soldier has picked up all year.

Mansfield Dogs Win Tree Event

DELAWARE—Iowa Jack and Seven-Up, both from Clyde Moore's kennel in Mansfield, took high honors at a coon chase here yesterday.

Moore's entries won first and second place in the tree event Eighty dogs participated in the chase.

Tennessee Nighthawk, owned by Mr Church of Newark was first in the line contest, while Jiggs, Bud Poston's entry from Columbus, came in second.

STOCKS STILL CLINGING TO UPWARD TREND

Market Extends Friday Rally on Restricted Basis With Surge of Early Buying.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The stock market today extended its Friday rally but on a more or less restricted basis.

Some brokers thought that the Harriman appointment to the Harriman department might have inspired part of the early buying.

Wall street, it was added, still maintained a cautious attitude pending more light on labor disputes and foreign developments.

Better performers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Goodyear, U. S. Rrubber, Woolworth, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Du Pont, Dow Chemical, Air Reduction, Schenley, Kennecott, North American, Western Union "A", Texas Co, Southern Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio. Slipping tendencies were displayed by Santa Fe, Pennsylvania Railroad, Southern Railway, American Smelting and Public Service of N. J.

TRUMAN TAPS HARRIMAN FOR CABINET POST

Present U. S. Ambassador to Britain Favors Firmness With Russians.

quaintance with Harriman and his personal popularity might well gain the appointment a better reception than would the selection of some one less well known in Moscow.

When Harriman had been in Moscow a little more than a year, Eddie Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent there, reported:

"No ambassador in Moscow knows Stalin as well as Harriman and Stalin probably likes none better. Harriman has seen more Soviet leaders than all the previous four ambassadors put together."

Educated at Groton and Yale, Harriman's first business experience was with the Union Pacific railroad. During World War I he built ships for the maritime commission.

Harriman's first government job was as deputy administrator of NRA in the early New Deal days. He was with the office of production management when President Roosevelt sent him to London in 1941 with the rank of minister to handle lend-lease aid to the British. From there, he took over aid for the Russians.

Mr. Roosevelt appointed him ambassador to Moscow in October, 1943. He resigned last February, then accepted appointment by President Truman in April as ambassador to London.

In the interim while he held no public office he called in a radio interview for firm dealing with Russia.

Probe Stabbing of Galion Motorist

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson today was investigating the stabbing of Charles Maglott, 23, Galion, in an argument following a minor traffic accident Saturday night east of Galion.

The sheriff said Maglott, who is in City hospital at Galion, blamed a farmer who lives near the accident scene. He said the farmer entered the dispute and told occupants of the second car to drive on.

Maglott was stabbed in the chest, but he told the sheriff he didn't see anyone use a knife during the argument. Robinson said Maglott's car apparently bumped another, starting the fuss. No charges had been filed at noon today.

KAISER DENIES BIG 'TAKE' IN WAR INDUSTRY

Claims He Saved Government Half-Billion Dollars on Contracts.

WASHINGTON —(UNS)— West coast shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser told the House Merchant Marine committee today that he saved the government upwards of a half-million dollars on war contracts.

Kaiser charged also that the defense plant corporation discriminated against his Fontana steel plant project in favor of U. S. Steel's Geneva, Utah, plant.

Kaiser, awaiting his turn to testify, placed before the committee which today opened a probe of wartime shipbuilder's profits a report setting forth his wartime activities.

The report said his profitable shipbuilding companies brought his family profits totaling three million 583 thousand dollars in dividends before taxes.

Kaiser complained, however, that the committee failed to ask about losses in unprofitable companies in its query.

He said that Kaiser Co., Inc., operating three shipyards and the Fontana steel plant had a net loss of eighteen and one-half million dollars.

The west coast industrialist in his statement prepared in question-and-answer form denied that he "made millions of dollars by using only one hundred thousand dollars of private funds."

On 807 liberty ships Kaiser said he saved the government 266 million dollars, based on comparison with "average" prices of other yards.

Kaiser appeared as the committee turned the spotlight on wartime shipbuilding profits of 19 companies, including six in which Kaiser managed or in which he was financially interested.

and the American Legion, sponsor of the project.

James L. Zimmerman, chairman of the Legion committee in charge of the housing project, said the first unit will be occupied by a veteran's family tomorrow after Max Popernik, FPHA project engineer, releases it from the government's jurisdiction this afternoon.

"This first unit is in a four-unit building. One of the other units should be ready for occupancy by Thursday and the remaining two by next Monday," Zimmerman said.

In another building containing two more family units, occupancy is pending the arrival of shower cabinets and the project engineer is unable to estimate when he will get delivery of them, Zimmerman said.

Can't Use Federal Funds For Fair

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Atty. Gen. Hugh S. Jenkins today advised Crawford county commissioners they have no authority to transfer to the county agricultural society funds paid by the federal government for using the fairground as an army camp.

Jenkins, in an opinion asked by Crawford County Prosecutor Leo J. Scanlon, ruled that "although the commissioners possess authority to transfer certain other funds, they can not transfer the federal money."

HOUSE STARTS NEW PROBE OF WAR SURPLUS

Action Threatens Shakeup in Administration of War Assets.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The house surplus property investigating committee today launched public hearings that may result in a new shakeup in the war assets administration.

Committee aides indicated that the house group, headed by Rep. Slaughter (D.), Mo., was not completely satisfied with the action taken by Lieut. Gen. Robert M. Littlejohn, war assets administrator, in revamping the electronics disposal division.

Hugh Wise, committee counsel, declared that some of the officials who "played favorites" in the disposal of valuable radio, radar and telephonic communications equipment were still holding responsible positions.

At stake is the disposal of some three billion dollars in surplus electronics equipment which the committee feels has been "sloppily handled" so far.

Littlejohn, who took over his post only recently, advised the committee ten days ago that he was reorganizing the war assets administration and hoped to complete the task in 90 days.

Deputy Administrator Frank R. Creedon, now in charge of the office of general distribution, faced a severe grilling at the hands of the committee. Creedon, slated as the first witness, was described by Wise as the man who was "ultimately responsible for the sale of electronics" under former Administrator E. B. Gregory, who preceded Littlejohn.

MRS. GUSTAV A. BAER

The juvenile delinquency problem is as old as love and as modern as a Frank Lloyd Wright house. Yet each age, each generation, presents its individual problems.

Mrs. Gustav A. Baer, 60 South Main street, dealt with it when she was matron at the Richland county jail and her husband was sheriff from 1905 to 1911. Her theory of solution then was the same as that of youth leaders today.

"Give a girl a good home and wise, understanding parents," Mrs. Baer used to say, "and you won't have delinquency problems."

As matron, Mrs. Baer saw to it that between the time a girl was sentenced and she was committed, she was given all the care and trust and advice that could be crowded in.

"I never locked a girl in her room at the jail," Mrs. Baer relates. "I always trusted them and they justified that trust."

"I never treated the girls like criminals. They were not criminals —just misguided girls—and much of their trouble was caused by lack of care and affection in their homes.

"During my stay there I took care of at least 12 girls, all of whom served their sentences at Delaware and came out to be fine women. I hear from them occasionally and not one of the dozen went bad again.

"I would tell the girls:

"'Now you've been given this sentence and you'll have to serve it. The thing for you to do is to obey all the rules, learn as much as you can, then come out and lead a different life.'

"And they all did just that."

"If I could just tell the girls today to mind their mothers," Mrs. Baer concluded. "Parents usually know best and it would save many of the girls a lot of grief if they would only listen."

FEEL PINCH

Crawford County Schools Hit By Meat Shortage.

BUCYRUS — With two rural school cafeteries opened and eight more scheduled to open soon, the the current meat shortage is being felt in the school districts.

So far only Chatfield and North Robinson cafeterias have been opened for meals, but the other eight will open this or next week.

Canneries at Sulphur Springs and North Robinson have prepared a quantity of food for the students, but the absence of meat is still being felt.

Canning of peaches has also been completed by Whetstone residents for the schools.

State school officials have stated that meat is not an essential to school lunches, but federal school lunch programs call for either fresh or canned meat, it has been pointed out by school officials.

ACCUSE PAIR ARRESTED NEAR BURGLARY SCENE

Police Book Brothers Who Were Questioned About Entering Cafe.

Two Columbus brothers, arrested last week in connection with the attempted theft of a 300-pound safe at the Ohio cafe on East Fourth street, were charged today with possession of burglary tools and carrying concealed weapons.

George Malitch, 35, and his brother, Paul, 38, were taken into custody by police near the cafe shortly after the burglary attempt was reported last Friday. George was carrying a gun and was charged with carrying concealed weapons, while there were burglary tools in a car owned by Paul, police said.

Hearing of the charges in municipal court was continued today until Tuesday morning to permit the men to get counsel in Steubenville. Their bonds were set at $3,000 each.

Officers said both men had penitentiary records.

Held to Jury.

In another case Ralph T. Pickens, 357 Newman street, was bound to the grand jury on $1,500 bond after he pleaded guilty to a grand larceny charge.

Officers said he allegedly carried away tools and plumbing fittings valued at $169.70 from the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, where he was employed.

All of the stolen items were carried off in a dinner pail, officers said.

An assault and battery charge filed against Richard Perry, Wise avenue, by his wife, Opal, was dismissed at her request.

The case against Helen Gorman, 29 Longview avenue, charged with having physical control of a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, was continued to Oct. 2.

Richard Griffith, 191 West Third street, pleaded guilty to speeding charge and was fined $10 and costs while Lester Martin, Coshocton, forfeited a $25 bond when he failed to appear to answer a charge of speeding.

Robert C. Roberts, Fairfield, O., was fined $5 and costs for driving with an inadequate muffler.

Other traffic violation arrests made by city police and state highway patrolmen over the weekend included a charge of failure to yield the right of way against Dorsey Hart, 497 West Fourth street.

Officers said Hart drove through the intersection at Main and Arch streets where his car hit another auto Saturday night.

Charged with speeding were Jewell R. Keith, St. Paul, Minn.; Marshall Houston, Crossville, Tenn., Richard Lawrence Rita, Crestline. Keith and Houston were released on bond and Rita was ordered to report in traffic court Wednesday.

AMBASSADORS OF GOODWILL as well as students of American production and manufacturing methods, four young Mexican technicians looking for someone to teach them English are shown discussing their problem with Director Russell Gimbel at Friendly House. Left to right: Jorge Ainslie, Gimbel, Carlos Garcia, Pedro Tejadilla and Ricardo G. Camacho.

They'll Teach Spanish To Learn English Better

By LARRY MURPHY

To most Mansfielders, the little grey building at 280 North Main street may be just Friendly House Settlement, but it really means "Casa Amable" or "Friendly House" to four young industrial technicians from Mexico City.

Sent to the States several weeks ago by Industria Electrica de Mexico to study modern production methods at Westinghouse, the four young college graduates have found Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gimbel kind and accommodating in helping them adjust themselves to typical Mansfield life.

Although all four read and write English fluently they experience some difficulty in handling pronunciation and coping with American idioms. Consequently, they are currently looking for someone to teach them the language two or three nights a week, or someone wishing to learn Spanish with whom they could effect an exchange of languages.

Reciprocal Plan.

Until a few days ago they were learning English at Friendly House under tutelage of Miss Rose Leiter, a former Friendly House language teacher, but she returned to a job in the Pittsburgh schools after vacationing in Mansfield this summer.

Jorge Ainslie, 27, handsome spokesman for the group, explains that he and his fellow students are "just typical Mexican citizens."

He said that through reciprocal agreements between his company and Westinghouse, he and many young technicians in Mexico were permitted to observe and make note of American manufacturing ways with the view of applying them to Mexican industry, using American patents.

American concerns likewise send technicians into Mexico to help establish large manufacturing concerns to meet an unfulfilled demand for consumer products.

Second Stop on Tour.

Mansfield is the second stop on the group's tour of American industrial plants. It began in Pittsburgh. From here they will go to Hamilton, Canada, where a different group of Westinghouse electrical products is made.

Although they do not work at any particular job within the plant, they have access to almost every part of the rambling structure for study, and they usually work from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

After hours they continue their study, read, and make out reports for their company.

Due to an unfavorable impression left in Mansfield by immigrant Mexican railroad workers during the war, the four technicians experienced some difficulty in finding a place to live, until Mr. and Mrs. Merle Pickett, 170 Elizabeth street, rented them rooms.

Find Knowledge Lacking.

The four youths express surprise at the relatively little knowledge Americans have of their neighbor to the south.

"We stopped in Chicago and bought some gifts for our folks," one of them said, "and when we told the clerk to send them to Mexico City, she asked us where Mexico was."

All four regard Mansfield as a typical midwest American city. They are lavish in their praise of technicians and laborers with whom they study at the plant.

Although they admit to being a bit lonely at times, they have learned that even language is no barrier to friendship at Mansfield's Friendly House.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1946

One observer comments: "Government isn't so terribly expensive, considering the amount of it we get."

A circle is defined as: "Something that when you don't know what you're doing, you go around in"—as with the OPA, for instance.

This year's turkey crop is expected to be nine per cent smaller than last year—which may be taken as a forewarning of a higher price.

Harriman Named To Replace Wallace

APPARENTLY the duties of the position of secretary of commerce have little to do with the selection of a man to fill that post, as the ousting of Henry Wallace and appointment of W. Averell Harriman seems to hinge entirely on the difference in attitude of these two men toward Russian policy.

If qualifications had played any part in the matter it is unlikely that Wallace would have been appointed in the first place, as his selection by the late President Roosevelt was rather a matter of finding a harmless sort of job for the man who had been turned down for second term as vice president.

As to fitness for the position of secretary of commerce, Harriman is undoubtedly better equipped by training and experience than was Henry Wallace, and his life-long association with wealth tends to place him among idealistic New Dealers, of the Roosevelt and Morgenthau type, rather than among those who anticipate an immediate arrival in Utopia, where there is a plentiful supply of everything, without requirement for work by anybody.

As a former ambassador to Russia, and now recalled as ambassador to England, Harriman is credited with a sympathetic attitude toward the problems of both of those countries, while his sterling Americanism is undoubted.

Henry Wallace's comment: "Mr. Harriman's appointment will be accepted with the greatest enthusiasm by the business community," while probably not intended to be complimentary, expresses recognition of qualities which seem badly needed in the federal administration at the moment.

Divided Opinion On Fairground Site

DIVERSITY of opinion on what should be done about the Richland county fairground, as expressed in yesterday's News-Journal by a number of interested citizens, tends to reveal some of the difficulties encountered in attempting to solve relatively minor problems of modern times.

It also throws light on causes of national and international conflicts in which much vaster interests are involved and in which differences have frequently led to war.

In the United States, and in the states and communities which it includes, majority rule has become an accepted custom in choosing officials, determining policies and deciding local issues.

While this does not always translate into practice, due to the effectiveness of minority pressure groups, it at least provides an expression of intent which has not been seriously questioned since the Civil war.

If, for instance, the matter of deciding whether or not Richland county should continue to hold county fairs, and, if so, whether the present grounds should be retained or another location secured, were to be left to a vote of all people in the county, preference expressed by a majority would, in all probability, be followed and the minority would not feel inclined to interpose objections.

The main difficulty, it appears, is to learn what the majority of county residents want in the matter of a fair and suitable location. There seems to be general agreement, however, that if there's to be an annual fair it should be a GOOD one.

World 'Freedom of Press' Sought

THE American Society of Newspaper Editors is attempting to bring about a free world press. It has asked the United Nations to adopt a covenant to establish the principles of free exchange of information among the nations of the world.

The program would oppose monopoly of media of information by either private organizations or governments, and would oppose any rights of censorship in peacetime. It is based on the premise that a free press everywhere is essential to international friendship.

All this is traditional American thinking, but the Russians don't feel that way about it. They believe that they can accomplish their own five-year plan of hard work and austerities more effectively if their people don't know all about the more comfortable life of some other nations. And they have no desire to let the rest of the world poke into corners of Russia and go home to talk about what they found.

Freedom of the press is a great safety valve for the world's boiling caldrons, but attaining it on a global scale will be impossible until all nations co-operate.

Fur Coat Business Thriving In U. S.

PROVIDING fur coats for American women has become an 800 million dollar business, and has shifted the world's fur center from London to New York in the last few years.

In Canada, Russia, Afghanistan and China the wholesale fur traders are shipping most of their skins to this country. Fur sales in other countries fell off during the war, and today a fur coat would be an impossible extravagance to nearly every British or European woman, much as she might like to own one.

The increased amount of cash in the hands of American women during the war has made it possible for thousands of them to buy fur coats they had always wanted, but couldn't afford. Since the start of the war fur sales here have increased 25 per cent, although prices have about doubled, according to the magazine World Report.

Leaders in the business realize the boom may crack in another year or so. They realize that some of the surplus money that has been going into furs may be diverted to other lines of merchandise as scarcities are overcome and reasonable prices are restored.

Overheard remark: "We never used to be able to find grandma's glasses, but now she leaves them just where she empties them."

It was a stockyards supervisor who replied to the inquiring reporter: "No moos today."

Use of vitamin-enriched mucilage on postage stamps is among the latest suggestions.

THE PEACE MAKER

'Firmness', Not 'Toughness', Is Real American Foreign Policy

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE WALLACE episode has resulted in a good deal of bandying about of the phrase "get tough with Russia" which was discussed by the secretary of commerce in the explosive Madison Square Garden speech that now has resulted in his resignation from the cabinet.

Mr. Wallace employed that expression when he declared that the United States in dealing with the Soviet Union was reckoning with a force which cannot be handled successfully by a "get tough with Russia" policy. He said that "the tougher we get, the tougher the Russians will get."

Such colorful representations travel fast and far, and we are likely to hear much more about this one.

It therefore should be noted now—and well—that the United States government never has promulgated a "get tough with Russia" policy.

What it has done is to lay down a foreign policy of firmness—and in any language there's a lot of difference between toughness and firmness.

Fortunately there is this middle course of FIRMNESS. Uncle Sam doesn't have to choose between a "tough" foreign policy and a "soft" one. If he did, he would have to be "tough," because these are hard days and British Prime Minister Chamberlain demonstrated conclusively in 1938 that appeasement as a policy doesn't pay. Appeasement died at Munich where England, Italy and France handed Hitler little Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland on a platter and thereby encouraged him to embark on conquest of Europe.

As a matter of fact, the last thing in the world which Moscow would appreciate would be a "soft" policy. Russia isn't soft itself and despises softness in others. The Soviet deals in direct action, and respects nothing less.

Therefore Uncle Sam's policy is one of firmness, which he adapts to the circumstances in which he finds himself. Unhappily the curcumstances frequently are difficult because the Russians are distrustful of America. They regard the United States as the keystone of capitalism—anathema of Communism. And Moscow looks upon much of the rest of the Western world in the same light.

That's why a lot of observers think Winston Churchill was hollering down a rain-barrel at Zurich last week when he urged a partnership between France and Germany as the first step in creating a united states of Europe whose "friends and sponsors" would include both Russia and America.

Europe is divided into two camps — the Moscow-dominated Slavic bloc and the Western countries. It will remain so until the suspicions are removed between Moscow and the "capitalistic" nations. The Russian-controlled newspaper Night Express, of Berlin, said Churchill's proposal was just another attempt at bloc building and "strengthening his front for a third world war." Distrust!

So the present task is to engender a feeling of trust between these two divisions—for the distrust is on both sides.

We already have an excellent medium through which to work—at least the best medium which could be devised at this time—and that is the United Nations.

The Big Three—America, Russia and Britain—all have reiterated their faith in the UN as a peace organization within recent months, and have pledged their support to it. There's only one thing to do, and that is to keep on feeding the major problems to the UN to be ironed out.

Meanwhile policies of softness or appeasement by individual powers won't help matters. Appeasement won't dissipate distrust but, on the contrary, is likely to increase it.

Gene Tunney became heavyweigth champion by defeating Jack Dempsey in 10-round bout in Philadelphia.

Miss Mary Suzanne Voegele and Gaylord W. Bahl, jr., were married at Women's club by Rev. Arthur M. Hughes.

Members of high school football squad were guests at Kiwanis club meeting held at Elks grill.

Instruction in salesmanship was given employes of local store by Thomas Farley of Dayton.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

On September 23, 1891, President Harrison appointed a commission whose duty it was to set the boundary between the United States and Mexico.

Dave Boone Says:

SLOW MOTION in the matter of getting nurses to the understaffed hospitals of the country continues. I got hundreds of letters from nurses and from patients after calling attention to the neglect and suffering now going on in all institutions, but not one single letter from a doctor or a hospital official.

* * *

You would think they, seeing the pathetic plight of hundreds of patients daily, would seem a little more stirred.

* * *

Almost without exception the letter said that "neglect" was an understatement and that deaths due to the nurse shortage ran into the thousands. They expressed a belief something could be done about it if those closest to the picture really got aroused.

* * *

A little of the zeal shown in enlarging or building new hospitals could well be applied to staffing them adequately, if you ask 'em.

Calvin A. Byers

Farmer's Diary: "What He Came For."

THE HUNTER from the city came out to our farm today. He drove a brand new car, and his hunting license was plain upon the back of his new jacket.

"I may not shoot anything," he said, almost apologetically, "but once or twice a year I like to get away from the desk and have a sane reason for tramping off alone through the fields and the gullies and the underbrush. I don't take anyone along, I don't want to. Talking spoils the whole setup.

"Funny how a man feels more civilized when he gets back after a hunting day. I've often tried to figure out what there is about it . . . soft haze folding in the ridges, trees turning red and yellow, hickory nuts a-dropping, cowbells clanking off somewhere . . . lots o' times I have sat for an hour on a log and looked off over the hills and valleys, watching farmers working their fields for wheat — seeing the sheep follow each other in single file along a deep narrow trail — noticing the horses pasturing against the skyline on the next hilltop.

"Once I was sitting like that and blamed if a pair of gray squirrels didn't chase right up a big tree just beside me. I shot and killed one and crippled the other. Just about broke its back. But then I felt kind o' guilty when he struggled to get away, and I pitied him and snuggled him down into my pocket. His dark eyes were so pleading and trustful like . . . it made me soft. I took him home and he seemed paralyzed for awhile, but finally he got all right and I took him to a tree in the park and let him loose.

"Four years ago I was down this way, remember? A chipmunk sassed me all the way up the hill, giving the alarm to all the woods that a man with a gun was coming. I never got a shot that day.

"I wonder—do you suppose wild animals remember the sight of the hunters—the smell of powder — the crack of the rifles? How do they know that there is impending danger? How much do wild creatures know?"

I watched him swing up along the path that leads through the old logging trail, his gun in the crook of his arm, his hunting license plain upon the back of his tan jacket. He walked past my friend the woodchuck without seeing him, and a noisy crow began to give the alarm in the woods on the hill. But I smiled—for I knew, whether I heard a shot from his gun or not, he would get what he had come for. And I was glad.

Effort to 'Appease' Russia Failed, Wallace Proposal Has Been Tried

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—In addition to the tough trans-Atlantic telephone conversations with Senators Connally and Vandenberg, there was one other factor in the back of President Truman's mind which led finally to Henry Wallace's resignation.

Truman remembered how, nine months before, Byrnes himself was under terrific inner-cabinet fire for entertaining somewhat the same sympathetic view on Russia as are now advocated by Wallace. The heat was so great that reports of Byrnes' impending resignation were even circulated and Gen. George Marshall was tentatively picked to take his place.

Truman, however, finally stood by Byrnes and decided to try out the Russian appeasement policy worked out in Moscow last December.

Since then the policy has been tried and Byrnes has come to the conclusion that it doesn't work.

In other words, Truman's conclusion after a lot of backing and filling last week, was that the Wallace policy came nine months too late.

Only a handful of Byrnes' advisers know the full story of what happened during his Moscow pilgrimage. However, he did his best to carry out many of the essential ideas now put forward by Wallace, and even concurred with Wallace's proposal of a large commercial credit to Russia—despite the known opposition of congress.

In September—prior to his trip to Moscow—Byrnes had had trouble with Molotov at the London foreign ministers conference. But after returning to Washington he decided that Russian relations were so important, he would make one more try at improving them.

Part of the trouble, he thought, might be such old-fashioned anti-Russian diplomats as Jimmy Dunn, so this time he left Dunn at home. Instead he took as his chief Moscow adviser, Ben Cohen, a frank, ardent advocate of Russian friendship.

Byrnes Implores Stalin.

Even so, Byrnes had a difficult time in Moscow. One night during an impasse he conferred alone with Stalin from 1 to 2 a. m. urging him to take advantage of the warm friendship the American people were then ready to extend Russia. Byrnes said the two nations had everything in the world to gain by friendship, and everything in the world to lose through rivalry.

Stalin listened, but seemed unmoved. He made no real concessions regarding democratic forms of government in the Balkans, while Byrnes made important concessions regarding Japan whereby the Russians participated on MacArthur's governing council.

In fact, Byrnes' concessions went so far that MacArthur privately threatened to quit. And when the secretary of state arrived home, he found a hostile group in the White House, led by Admiral William Leahy, ready to tear his agreement to tatters.

Truman, at first, was disturbed by inner-circle criticism of Byrnes' appeasement. Finally, however, he backed up his secretary of state 100 per cent.

It has been events since then that have convinced Byrnes that he was wrong and that an appeasement program, such as he and Wallace both believed in nine months ago, won't work. Even Ben Cohen, who was strong for Russian friendship, is now disillusioned. Likewise, Undersecretary Dean Acheson, long-time advocate of cooperation with Russia, has regretfully reversed himself.

They do not believe in deliberately antagonizing the Soviet. But they do believe that the Soviet interprets appeasement as weakness, and that this is a time when a firm policy, coupled with friendship for the Russian people, is the only one we can follow. That was the conclusion finally reached by Tuman when he asked for Wallace's resignation.

Wallace's Last Conference.

One of the most historic conferences of the Truman era—the last between the president and the lone Roosevelt New Dealer remaining in his cabinet—began on a unique key.

The president had Henry Wallace's long letter on Russia before him when Wallace entered and he proceeded to inquire about certain points which he did not understand.

From that point until two and a half hours later when Wallace departed, the conversation was on the friendliest level.

Truman said Byrnes obviously was irked at the Wallace speech, and represented Byrnes as believing any American had a right to discuss foreign policy as a private citizen, but those playing on the same cabinet team should discuss it only inside the cabinet.

The president reminded Wallace that Byrnes was not a well man, probably would have to resign later on account of health. Therefore an open battle with Wallace would make it more difficult for him to quit, and Wallace would be defeating his own purpose. It was intimated that the next secretary of state might be Dean Acheson, who is a friend of Wallace's.

When the president proposed that Wallace confine his speeches to domestic questions, Henry demurred. He said that it was almost impossible to separate the two subjects, and that audiences all over the country would chant: "What about foreign policy? What about foreign policy?"

"Sometimes I am going to speak extemporaneously," he said, "and when something is in my heart, I'm likely to say it."

Truman said he expected the peace conference to end in four to five weeks—certainly before Oct. 23, when the United Nations general assembly was due to meet in New York. This would permit Wallace to make some speeches before election day.

What Army Wants.

When the talk turned to Wallace's contention that U. S. military and naval men wanted a preventative war, Truman pulled out a letter sent him that day by the secretaries of war and navy emphatically denying this. Attached was a recommendation by the state department that the letter be made public.

Wallace said he had no objection to publication, but that he considered the statement completely inaccurate. It was common knwledge, he said, that many high officers openly favor an atomic war on Russia.

Toward the end of the conference Truman summoned press secretary Charlie Ross to draft a short statement to the press. Ross was the only person to enter the room during the long session.

The two men parted on the best of terms, and it was some hot messages from Paris later that finally ended a friendship which began after the Chicago convention of 1944 when Henry Wallace, defeated, refused to "take a walk" but spent three months campaigning vigorously for Roosevelt and Truman.

Stock Market Break Forecasts Trouble Ahead.

WASHINGTON—The thunderclap of the stock-market break, coming out of the uncertain, end-of-summer sky, cannot be laughed away. It is a precursor of economic trouble ahead just as it was in 1929 and 1930.

The charge of political manipulation in the market has been made. To be sure, a depression in 1947 and 1948 would make the Republicans happy.

No major political change has ever occurred without a depression as a forerunner, as statistician Louis Bean has shown in his detailed analysis of political trends.

While there may have been some political influence on the market, that is too simple and too easy an explanation. But why should the barometer of the stock market fall so abruptly when nearly 60,000,000 Americans are employed and when production is at a high level? The answer, it seems to me, is not hard to find.

It lies in soaring prices. The average consumer finds it difficult or impossible to catch up with these prices with the money in his wage envelope.

The stock-market break heralded the end of the boom-time phase when things were snatched off counters and out of show windows as soon as they appeared. Even with a reserve in war bonds and savings, the average family is beginning to pull back in the face of prices that seem unreasonably high.

You don't have to be a statistical genius to discover this. All you have to do is to go to the corner grocery. On a family errand recently, I bought a dozen oranges, a pound of butter, and enough fish for five people. The bill was $2.69. While this was on the edge of a resort area, nevertheless individual prices were not very much higher than in the great consuming centers.

To find the cause of this ominous dislocation, you can, of course, go back to original sin. This is to say, you can go back to the fact that we here at home fought a soft war.

We lacked the political courage to cut out excessive profits and excessive wages as the government spent undreamed-of billions for the complex instruments of modern war.

Our next-door neighbor, Canada, did it the other way—the hard way. That is why Canada's economic and political stability is today so conspicuously in contrast to the mumblings and rumblings of the colossus on her border.

But ignoring original sin, we can look back to a more recent error. If, after V-J day, the Truman administration had tried to hold the war-time controls which did exist, the economic snarl of the present might just possibly have been averted or its worst consequences might have been avoided.

Instead, the then reconversion director, John W. Snyder, hastened to dump overboard all controls that were not nailed down by law. And as a reward for this brilliant effort, he was made secretary of the treasury.

Some of the attempts to rationalize away the significance of the thunderclap of the stock market sound like the mumbo-jumbo of 1929 and after. We were told then by the Republican prophets that the market had no relation to America's prosperity, which was guaranteed on the permanent level of two cars in every garage. Disillusionment came swiftly, bringing terrible misery and insecurity to millions of Americans.

It is possible that we shall get, this time, not a serious and prolonged depression but a temporary break, a recession. After all, there is still an enormous backlog of money accumulated during the war, although, as analysts have shown, this is for the most part not in the hands of the mass of consumers.

You need not be a professional crystal-gazer to see what consequences a recession might have. Setting in, in full force, in the spring of 1947 and developing in 1948, it would be thoroughly exploited by the Republicans.

Conceivably, it could determine the outcome of the 1948 presidential election, ending 16 years of Democratic rule. We might then be blessed with an era of old-fashioned Republican prosperity. There could be no illusions about the permanence of such an era.

If prices respond quickly to the break, we may avoid a depression. Unfortunately, the trend is still strongly in the other direction. The motor companies, for example, are plugging still another increase in the price of cars.

A second and more important factor is productivity. An overwhelming flood of goods could turn the tide. The next two or three months will tell the tale. How much of our destiny will then be determined, we can only surmise.

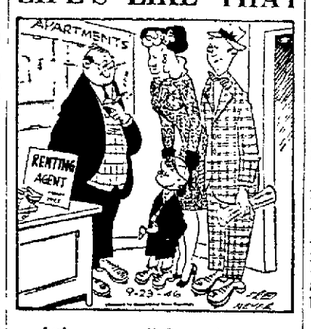
LIFE'S LIKE THAT



An' you won't have to worry about junior writing on the walls . . . he hates school."

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen

There Are Various Kinds of Pneumonia.

MOST people think of pneumonia, or inflammation of the lungs, as a single disease but, in reality, there are many types of pneumonia, produced by many different kinds of germs.

Pneumonias vary, too, in the way in which they affect the lungs. Since successful treatment will depend on the type present in the individual case, the doctor will first want to know what sort of pneumonia he has to deal with.

Here, the X-ray is useful. Lobar pneumonia, or the kind which affects one or more of the lobes, or large divisions, of the lungs, will show as a dense shadow on an X-ray photograph, the shadow being limited to the infected lobe. Whereas X-ray examination in a case of bronchopneumonia will depict shadows arranged like bunches of grapes here and there throughout the lungs.

Other Differences.

There are other differences, too. Lobar pneumonia usually comes on suddenly, striking out of the blue, while bronchopneumonia most often begins with an infection in the nose, throat or bronchial tubes and sometimes occurs as a complication of another ill, say, measles or whooping cough.

The germs which can cause either of these pneumonias are legion, though the most frequent type of lobar pneumonia results from pneumococcus germs. A more serious and, fortunately, more unusual form, is caused by the staphylococcus.

Pneumococcus germs, staphylococcus, streptococcus, a germ known as Friedlander's bacillus and a great number of others may bring about bronchopneumonia.

There is still another, totally different type of pneumonia, one which is caused not by a germ but by a virus, an organism so small that it can pass through the openings of a porcelain filter. This tiny troublemaker attacks the tissues in between the air-sacs and here, tell-tale disease shadows show up at the lung roots in an X-ray.

Once the type of pneumonia present is diagnosed, treatment can be decided upon.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, September 24.

ACCORDING to the planetary operations, this may prove to be a day of complexities and problems of more than passing consequence and long-range denouements. In the final analysis, the successful, happy and constructive culmination depends upon a strict adherence to a system of law and order, with a basis of frank and harmonious adjustments at the root of things.

Decisions must be based on practical foundations, even though pressure may be exercised to nullify such by erratic or haphazard judgments.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which it may be necessary to make decisions of vital and far-reaching significance, especially in adjusting the life and its objectives to fresh patterns, new pastures and associations. These have prospect of productive and progressive importance if sound judgment, practical bases of harmony, order and system are employed, even though utilizing strange or experimental techniques.

Snap decisions, erratic or emotional urges would nullify all favorable and pleasant culminations. Resist pressure from all sources.

A child born on this day has excellent prospects for a productive and happy career, with much ability and skill. An erratic or emotional impetuosity might stand in its way.

Veteran Martin Hardware Worker Has Been at His Bench Forty Years

Honor Hauserman For Long Service At City Store.

By ALVIN PREYER

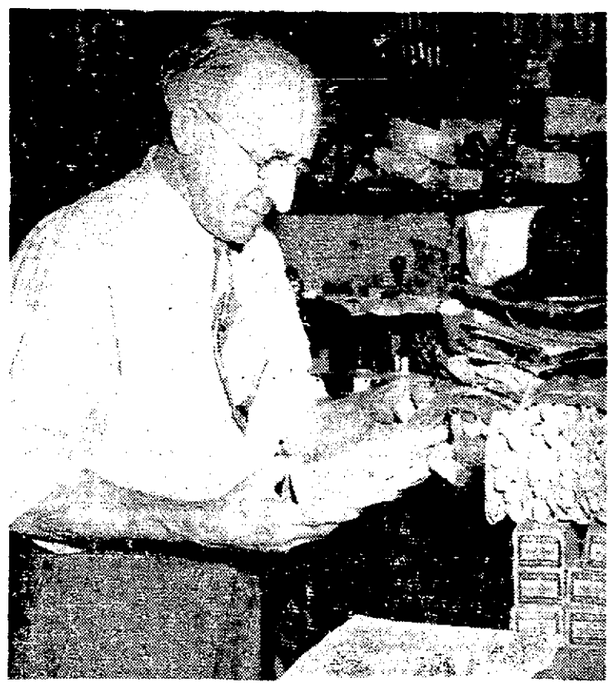
Standing at the work bench that has been his for 40 years, Frank Hauserman, 67, proudly displayed the gold watch presented to him last month by fellow employes honoring him as the worker with the longest service at the Martin Hardware store.

Modest about being interviewed, Hauserman said, "I've enjoyed reading about the other fellows with long employment records, so I guess it's only right I should let them read about me."

"I was born at Windsor in 1879, and first came to Mansfield in 1901," Hauserman related.

"After working at various jobs, I finally got what I always wanted a job in the hardware business, and I've been at it for 40 years now, working at this bench. It looks like it had 40 years' accumulation of stuff on it, doesn't it," he asked, pointing to his neat bench where the articles he receives and marks were stacked.

"Work is my hobby as well as my living," he explained. "You see, I love my work here and devote much of my time to it. At home I enjoy puttering around the house—a sort of a hardware man's holiday, you might call it.



Frank Hauserman . . . hardware worker 40 years.

"The increasing variety of hardware offered for sale is the thing that has impressed me most during my long period in the business," Hauserman said.

STORE GREW FROM ONE ROOM

"I have watched this store expand from one room, facing on Walnut, clear through to Main street, and we are now modernizing the whole store," he indicated, as he pointed to the various changes being made.

Hauserman is a family man, and has been a member of the First Methodist church since his arrival in Mansfield. He and his wife live at 36 Blanch street. They have two sons, one a teacher in the Mansfield public schools, and the other an engineer in Cleveland.

Celebration Honors Saint

CHICAGO—(AP)—Samuel Cardinal Stritch, Catholic Archbishop of Chicago, presided last night over the official celebration of the canonization of the first American Saint of the Roman Catholic church.

Approximately 100,000 persons gathered in Soldier Field during the sixth annual holy hour to commemorate the elevation of Mother Frances Cabrini, Italian-American nun who worked among the poor in the Chicago slums until her death in 1917. She was canonized last July.

Robert Hannegan, postmaster general, and Gael Sullivan, assistant postmaster general, both of whom recently were made Knights of St. Gregory by Pope Piux XII, marched in the guard of honor accompanying Cardinal Stritch.

Two bishops of Italian descent attended the services. They were The Most Rev. Charles Greco, bishop of Alexandria, La., and The Most Rev. John K. Mussio, Steubenville, O.

Before the holy hour, a historic pageant depicting the career of Mother Cabrini was presented before the altar, over which was erected a 75-foot portrait of the new Saint. More than 2,000 students participated in the pageant.

HONORED BY DINNER.

GALION—Mrs. Rebecca Dye of 203 Grant street, observed her 94th birthday anniversary, yesterday at her home. One of the cities oldest residents, she was honored with a birthday dinner, by her children and several of her grandchildren.

"I wish I had kept track of the faces that have come and gone since I have been here" Hauserman said.

"I remember some advice that was given me when I first came to Martin's: "You're not much good in the business for the first four years". I didn't believe it then, but I do now," he said.

OPENS CONFERENCE — Rev. Robert E. McKinney of Denver, Colo., will open a series of Bible conference at Grace Gospel church beginning Tuesday night. Rev. McKinney tells the story of the Bible with reproductions of famous masterpieces of Biblical paintings. In a visit to the Holy Land several years ago, Rev. McKinney took 4,000 feet of moving pictures. These will be shown Saturday night. Rev. James E. Davey, pastor of the church, will preside at the services and there will be music each night.

Record Crowd of 11,000 Attends Ashland Centennial

ASHLAND — Previous attendance records at the Ashland county fair were shattered Saturday as 11,000 customers crowded the turnstiles to raise the four-day fair attendance level to 48,000.

Gala climax of the Centennial observances was the pageant-parade of "100 years of good living in Ashland county," as presented Saturday night under the direction of Prof. W. A. Miley of Ashland college.

A cast of more than 150 presented highlights of life in Ashland county during the past century. More than 50 entries, including floats and demonstrations, passed in review before the grandstand.

Outstanding floats were those showing the building and growth of Ashland college since 1878, an 1848 Studebaker wagon wrought in Ashland county by George Myers and John Studebaker, and a Spring Valley 4-H club float which squeezed cider from an old cider press and distributed it to the crowds lining the parade course.

The first part of the pageant-parade traced the development of transportation from early days of the Indian drag to the latest model cars.

FAMILY MESSAGE NO. 2

"Family happiness has to be planned"

To help families get more happiness out of family money, here are some suggestions by MISS CORNELIA DUNPHY, Home Economist for Community Service Society of New York and Consultant to Family Service Association of America.

Call a family round table

"Family money buys more happiness when you follow a plan," says Miss Dunphy.

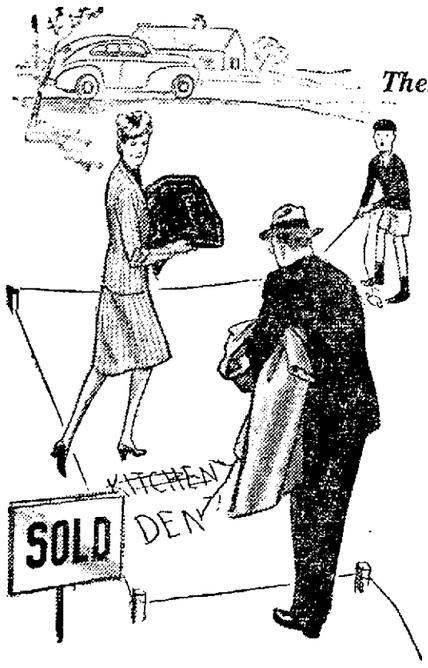
"This means that Dad, Mother and youngsters should discuss the things that are most important to them. Should they buy a new car, or save for Brother's education? Should Dad have a new suit, or Sister a new party dress?

"Talking it over helps grownups and children understand why they can have some things and not others. It teaches the value of money and explains why so much family income must go for living expenses."

"First things first"

"Begin by listing all your family's 'must' payments. These are 'fixed' items you have already agreed to pay for, such as rent, taxes, mortgage charges, life insurance and other insurance. The easiest way is to bank the small amounts each payday that add up to the larger amounts when due.

"Next comes the 'emergency fund'—to prepare your family against emergencies. Authorities say two to three months' pay is a safe amount. After you decide how much your emergency fund should be, deposit something extra in the bank each payday until this amount is reached."



Then for today . . . and tomorrow

"Once these things have been provided for, you can plan more freely for the everyday expenses, such as food, heat, clothing, and recreation . . . and for some of the other things that add pleasure and profit to life, such as a vacation, a new house, a college education . . .

"Few families have enough money for everything they want—or even everything they need. So choices have to be made. But wise choices depend upon planning for all your family needs. And planning depends upon family cooperation for mutual happiness and satisfaction."

What's Cooking?

Ripe Plum Jam.

4 cups prepared fruit
2½ cups sugar
2½ cups light corn syrup
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, pit (do not peel) about 2½ pounds fully ripe plums. Cut in small pieces and crush. Add ¼ cup water, bring to a boil, and simmer, covered, 5 minutes. If desired ¼ to 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves and allspice may be added.

Measure sugar and syrup into dish and set aside until needed. Measure prepared fruit into a 5- or 6-quart kettle, filling up last cup or fraction of cup with water if necessary.

Place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar and syrup, stirring constantly. (To reduce foaming, ½ teaspoon butter may be added.) Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 six-ounce glasses.
